Council Decides To Put Gravel On Third Street

Another Offer for Gravelling is Declined as Council Decides to do No More Road Work at The Present Time

With a full council and Mayor Worts in the chair, council met Monday evening in regular session.

After the disposition of the minuter of the previous meeting W. Campeau waitedon council and asked what rent council wanted for store under Mr. Oaklands living quarters. Rent was set at $10.00 a month and Mr. Campeau accepted this figure and stated he would take possession on September 1st.

Messrs. Goodine and Benjamin proposed to council that they would furnish the town with 150 loads of gravel to be placed where requested by the town foreman in return for the old Royal Cafe building on Second street. Their proposition was accepted by council

Councillor Lavelle reported that he had inspected the Glass plant regarding the amount of water used there and found conditions were satisfactory and that the management was conserving the water supply as much as possible.

The Utilities Commission reported their approval of the arrangements made by the town in connection with its banking business.

The report of the Health Inspector, who visited the town recently, was read. The report showed that the town was in a most satisfactory condition both from a health and sanitary standpoint

On motion of councillors Hargrave and Sangster the town foreman was instructed to have rubberoid roof put on building occupied by Dr. Ward, provided similar work done in town is satisfactory.

A letter was read from Mr. Garner offering to do road work to the value of price set on the Redcliff livey barn. Council was of the opinion that it would not be advisable to do any more road work this year.

The usual monthly accounts were approved for payment.

Rent on the vacant store opposite the post office was set at $6.00 per month, on application of Chinese market gardiner

A jolly party of Redcliff young people, and others not so young, spent Friday evening at the riverside where they enjoyed a refreshing swim, followed by an appetising supper of hot dogs, corn and coffee. Before they returned to town they enjoyed a good old sing song around a roaring bon fire on the beach.

Softball Girls Take The Boys Into Camp

Beat Them by One Run in The Game Last Friday

By changing batteries with the boys the softball girls were successful in defeating the S. A. R. lads in the game last Friday evening. The game was closely contested throughout and as the finish the girls were one run up, the score being 7-6.

Both teams played a snappy game but the girls gave the boys a few pointers on how to get runs, steal bases and make double plays.

Unfortunately our sporting editor did not see the game and according to the fans it was a real one.

Redcliff Reminiscences

Taken From Our Files of Aug. 21st., 1914

A royal send off was given by Redcliff citizens to the four young reservists who have been called to the colors. These are Messrs. E. Keal, J. Woods, L. Barnes and F. Jefferys. Each man was presented with a sum of money and they were followed in procession to the depot by fully 1,500 people who cheered them to the echo and wished them God Speed.

* * *

Another reservist, Mr. Smith, left for Quebec on Wednesday evening.

* * *

Geo. Lynch left Wednesday evening for Maple Creek to join the 27th Light Horse.

* * *

Constable Washford, a veteran of the South African war, has enlisted.

* * *

Mrs. Martin Fleming died in the Medicine Hat hospital on Saturday.

* * *

Settlers are leaving this district in order to secure school facilities for their children.

* * *

Mr. and Mrs. Broadfoot and family, while returning from a holiday at Gull Lake, were forced to take refuge for the night in an empty shack somewhere west of Bassano, when their gas tank went dry.

Grasshoppers have never been so numerous in and around town as they are this year. Every street, lane, garden and vacant lot has its quota which runs into the millions. Unless something happens to interefere with thir breeding, there surely will be an awful crop of them nex' year

* * *

Mrs. J. Podesta, sr. and Ernest, Mrs. P. McDermot and the Misse Janet and Jean Paterson motored to Calgary last Wednesday returning Monday. On the way to Calgary they narrowly escaped a serious accident when some cattle decided to cross the road in front of the car. Ernie was forced to take the ditch and, while the occupants of the car were more or less bruised and one of the springs was broken, no serious damage was done.

* * *

Chas. Sneddon and Bill Rendells, of Calgary, were in town Tuesday en route to Bingville where they will spend their holidays with the former's sister, Mrs. J. Hulland.

* * *

The Review wishes to apologise to Miss Hicks and Miss Morrish for stating in the last issue that they were on the staff of the Holy Cross hospital, Calgary. It should have read the General Hospital.

* * *

There was a rumor around town this week that the Redcliff school was not going to open until the 1st. of October. This is a mistake. The school will open for business as usual on Tuesday, September 5th. A full staff of teachers has been engaged for the opening.

Stampede Asso. Shows a Surplus For This Year

Will Have A Benefit Dance Here on Labor Day

A meeting of the local Stampede executive was held last Tuesday evening for the purpose of receiving the financial statement. Supporters will be glad to know that after paying all expenses for this year's stampede, the Association still has a small surplus from the proceeds of the day, despite the additional expense for athletic events.

At this meeting the executive decided to put on a benefit dance here on Labor Day, Sept 4th for one of its members who has been an untiring worker on the executive ever since the association was organized. and who has been in the hospital for several weeks as a result of an accident.

DESERVES POPULARITY

"The Good Companions," opening at the Monarch theatre Medicine Hat on Monday, Aug. 21st, is the type of entertainment that appeals to everybody and well deserves the tribute of being the first talking picture to be honored with the public attendance of their Majesties King George and Queen Mary. These Gaumont-British picturization of the beloved novel by J. B. Priestley is probably the most human and entertaining film ever produced. The perfect acting cast, which includes over 1000 players is headed by Jessie Matthews as 'Susie Dean' and Edmund Gwenn as "Jess Oakroyd" and over six months was required for filming. The glowing praise recently bestowed upon 'The Good Companions' by the press and public of leading Canadian cities is being duplicated throughout the world and the new song hits, 'Let Me Give My Happiness to You" and "Three Wishes." introduced in the film, are winning wide popularity. The local showing of "The Good Companions" is a real event and everybody who is anybody will follow the example of the King and Queen and enjoy a rare treat at the Monarch theatre.

Mr. and Mrs. Rhodes, of St. Paul, returned to their home last Thursday after spending a week with Mr. Rhode's sister, Mrs. A. Dubeau, and Mr. Dubeau.

Mrs. Greives has been confined to her home for the past week, with a severe attack of bronchitis.

Have you seen E. T. Cooke's lawn on Third street? It is an outstanding evidence of what can be accomplished in the dry belt, by persistant care and the right methods. This fine stretch of soft, green sward is flanked by a luxuriant bank of sweet peas and is certainly a pleasure to gaze upon and is a relief from the surrounding brown of the scorching prairie grass.

Redcliff Girls Now Tied With League Leaders

Defeat Safeways 13 to 6 Last Monday—Will Now Play 2 Games to Decide Winners.

In their game with the Safeway softball girls here last Monday evening the local lassies put up one of their best games this season, and won out by a score of 13 to 6. By winning this game the local girls tied the league leaders for first place in the league.

The locals shut out the visitors until their last turn at bat when they made their six runs on a series of errors by the home girls. Up till that time Redcliff girls played an almost errorless game, not allowing the visitors to get in one run for the fist six innings. In the mean time our girls were scoring every innings but one, and had piled up such a comfortable lead that they did not need to take advantage of their last turn at bat.

Both pitchers put up an excellent game and it was the opinion of the fans that both teams made a mistake in changing them in the final stages as it was felt it was not their fault the game went the way it did.

As these two teams are now tied for first place it has been decided to play a series of three games to decide the winnrs of the trophy for the league.

Life Means Change.

Occasionally the writer of this column feels the urge to pass on to the readers of it some thought, or idea, or even complete article he has come across in his own reading. In surrendering to that urge this week, we pass on an article appearing in a little United States magazine which does not go into general circulation, which has no subscription list, but which is distributed free to a selected list of people in all parts of the world. That article follows:

To prepare us for life in a world that is continually changing, that is a very small part of a universe in which nothing is or ever will be static even for the space of one brief second, humanity has been taught, from the earliest dawn of reason, to strive for permanence, security, safety, ease, something which we may accept as settled. Thus we find ourselves mentally and spiritually unprepared to meet the apparently sudden, unexpected changes which follow inevitably upon some wide-spread emergency. Instead of schooling ourselves to meet emergencies in their varied and unpredictable phases, we have preferred to be lulled or to lull ourselves into a sense of false security, to surround ourselves with an atmosphere of spiritual anesthesia. Instead of taking life as a tremendous adventure—and it is this or nothing—we delude ourselves into the belief that we have made of it something restfully secure, that we have created, in some measure at least, a lasting order of things. And we commit the added absurdity of telling our children that these things are so, when our whole experience, the experience of all humanity proclaims them to be utterly false.

How different would have been our reactions to the experiences of the last three uncommonly trying years had we been free from the traditional fear of change. And why should we fear change when it is the most certain thing that life brings us? It is the very essence of life; the vital germ of growth; the stimulus toward achievement; the point of far-flung outlook along the road of progress. Change gives life its vitality; lends it sparkle and variety and the lure of glorious adventure; makes it worth living to those who have learned the most precious, most helpful of its secrets. Acceptance of this fact is the one royal way to spiritual freedom, and in spiritual freedom lies the only assurance of surety, of permanence, of safety, of ease to be found in all the range of created things. For only when the spirit is free—free from delusions and superstitions and intolerances and fears and traditions and narrow prejudices and selfishness—free to venture where it will and when it will, is it prepared to meet, with profit to itself, the ever unexpected possibilities and adventures of life. The accumulation of these spiritual profits is the one sure laying-up of treasure where neither moth nor rust can corrupt, and where thieves cannot break through and steal. It is the one treasure not subject, except in enhancement, to the vicissitudes of life.

The chief thing in living is life itself. The chief purpose in life should be to live it abundantly, joyously, zestfully; to savor each of its constantly varying phases; to get all we can out of it and to put all we can into it. We should not fear to meet any part of it. We should prepare ourselves for the realities of life, frankly admit them as realities, and reap the fullest possible advantages from them. And if we do this we shall come to the inescapable conclusion that the genuinely desirable advantages of life have little if anything to do with material things.

If we would enjoy life to the full, we must change our traditional attitude toward it. Instead of bulking upon the illusion of permanency, we must build upon the certainty of change—constant change both within ourselves and in all other created things; physical, mental and spiritual change. For without change life could not exist. To imagine any possible permanency in life, anything static, anything unchanging even for the smallest period of our conception of time, would be to imagine our most fearful and hopeless conception of death. And life knows no death, only change, and continuing life.

There is no thought in anything I have said here that we should not strive intelligently and courageously for some measure of stability, some temporary standard of thought and action, in our material affairs; but that in our thinking and our striving we never should for a moment lose sight of the realities of life, and that neither permanency nor absolute security is one of them. Our ideas of security, of any settled order of things, should be relative. They should be held loosely and subject to the certainty of change. In other words, we should prepare ourselves for change as for the one sure thing which life offers us. Our accumulations of things material should be secondary to our accumulations of things spiritual. The insecurity of material accumulations should make us value more highly the security of spiritual accumulations—our experiences, our memories, our generous and friendly impulses, our unselfish and tolerant motives, our whole attitude toward our fellows, our confidence in the eternal beneficence of life, our love of what is good, our desire for continuing human betterment, in short, all that our experience has taught us is most to be desired.

Let us then accept life frankly as a glorious adventure, and face it at all times cheerfully and bravely. Let us banish fear, fear of present insecurity, fear to venture because of uncertainty, above all else, fear of change. Let us be constantly prepared for change, ready to take advantage of it rather than to have it take advantage of us. Let us live our lives to the full and go forward cheerfully, bravely, confidently, and with light and hopeful hearts.

Some Birthday Dinner

Peter the Great, three tons of hippopotamus is 30 years old and Bronx zoo officials prepared his four-course birthday dinner. The appetizer was a bushel basket of mangels. In lieu of soup was served a wheat of young corn stalks. Entree consisted of two loaves of brown raisin bread. And the piece de resistance was Peter's standard dinner, 100 pounds of hay.

Botanists Are Interested

Awaiting News Regarding Discovery Of Musk Plants In B.C.

Botanists everywhere are awaiting eagerly news concerning the musk plants with the long lost odor on Texada Island, B.C.

In connection with the reported discovery by Stanley Boys on Texada Island, on the British Columbia Coast, of a musk plant carrying the distinctive odor common over twenty years ago but since unknown, Dr. Arthur W. Hill, director of the Royal Botanic Gardens, Kew, England, is keenly interested.

Dr. Hill has written to Frank Kermode, of the Provincial museum of natural history, Victoria, saying the discovery, if it can be substantiated, is of every great scientific interest. He asks that if possible seed or plants with a strong musk scent may be forwarded to him at Kew, and gives instructions for their safe packing for the journey and outlines special precautions to be taken in forwarding them.

The musk of the odor well remembered by most persons of English upbringing—it was common as a pot plant for houses in England a quarter of a century ago—is said to have been taken to England originally from British Columbia by the famous Douglas whose name is perpetuated in our Douglas fir.

It is given as having originated on the American continent by authorities. It had commercial value for perfume manufacture years ago and there are commercial possibilities about its rediscovery in British Columbia apart from world-wide scientific interest.

Home For Orphan Boy

Adopted By Wealthy Couple Whose Dead Son Ho Resembles

The home of a wealthy silk dyer and such advantages as a college education were ready for a 12-year-old orphan boy from Omaha, Neb., in what seemed like a modern version of the old story of Cinderella and the prince.

The boy was Peter Christopolis, and inmate of Father Flanagan's Boys' Home near Omaha. A picture of the lad, an orphan since early childhood, was the medium through which he has become just like a son in the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Strenge, who live at Paterson, New Jersey.

It seems that Strenge saw the picture of Peter and was struck by the resemblance of his son, Henry, who was drowned in Green Pond, N.J., a little over a year ago. As a result, arrangements were made to bring Peter in the Strenge household to take the place of the dead boy.

Farming On Small Scale

Has Proved Best During These Times Of Depression

Large-scale farming it is worth noticing, is no longer being advanced as the ideal for agricultural life. It is not so many months since farmers were being told that agricultural salvation could only be attained by mass production on very large farms, and fears were being expressed that the small farmers would lose their individuality and become something approaching serfs. But the depression has changed all that, as it has changed many other things. The small farmer is managing to get along in some way or other, but the large scale farmers have gone broke or shut up shop. — Brockville Recorder and Times.

Prairie Wheat Sales Higher

Show Substantial Increase Over Corresponding Period In 1932

Prairie wheat marketings showed an increase of 2,651,379 bushels over the corresponding period last year for the week ending June 23, according to Dominion Government figures released this week.

Total marketings for the crop year to date were 356,742,219 bushels as compared with 259,022,190 a year ago. For Saskatchewan the year's sales were 180,485,507 as compared with 115,863,839.

More Aeroplane Passengers

Business Increasing On U.S. Lines and Competition Is Keen

The skyways of North America are being "double tracked."

A survey of major air lines carrying passengers to every corner of America—and one of them planning to extend across the ocean—showed that commercial aviation has increased its passenger income by one-third in recent weeks.

The reason: Renewed activity in general business and loss of what aviation men call "air anxiety" by the public.

The result: A battle for the new business comparable to that of the railroads several decades ago.

In the scramble for passengers, millions of dollars have been poured into new equipment. Soundproof cabins have been evolved by United Air lines. American Airways has responded with ships in which passengers can sleep on comfortable berths during night trips between Chicago and the Pacific Coast.

A smaller line, Northwest Airways, has ordered a fleet of planes capable of 215 miles an hour with a cruising speed of 180 and announced a plan to compete for business between Chicago and the Pacific northwest.

At the coast, Northwest will connect with Pan American Airways, which plan to extend its present lines to Alaska across the Arctic to Asia. At present, Northwest operates between Chicago and Montana and northward to Winnipeg, Man.

As proof of increasing business the Chicago municipal airport announced that 6,927 passengers were carried out of Chicago on regularly scheduled trips during June, an increase of 100 per cent. from a year ago.

Many licensed pilots have obtained employment in the past few months, air line officials announced, because of additional planes placed on schedules.

Trips between Chicago and New York have been doubled by three lines. A traveller between the two cities now has a choice of more than 30 planes daily, the time of the schedules ranging upward from four and three-quarter hours eastbound to five and one half hours westbound.

Recovery Program

Plans Formulated In United States To Assist Workmen

With almost 1,000,000 mill workers tackling their jobs under the stimulus of higher pay, plans were fashioned by the United States industrial administration for harmonizing the whole force of public opinion behind the Roosevelitan endeavor to open more jobs and fill additional salary envelopes.

Hugh S. Johnson, industrial administrator, called in his staff of advisors to check over every detail of the preparations for a campaign modelled after the Liberty Loan drives of the Great War days to unite the citizenry behind the recovery efforts. Secrecy surrounded the formulation of the plans.

A national campaign now in the making would seek even more informal, purely voluntary wage-raising and hour-cutting action, along the lines of that taken by the steel industry in increasing wages 15 per cent. today, without waiting for an executive order by the president.

A strong appeal from President himself might form the centre of the movement. It still was considered possible that he might, in this, recommend general hour limits, and advise what minimum wage levels should be.

Located Lost Galleons

Pirate Loot Within Grasp Of An English Adventurer

Treasure buried long ago by pirates who had stolen it in raids on merchantmen is believed to be within the grasp of an expedition led by Stratford D. Jolly, an English adventurer, who, with his party, set out from Brixham more than a year ago in a converted steam trawler. At least, Jolly believes the treasure is within reach. He has returned to England for a short time, but will continue the search in another vessel the trawler having been sold.

One of their party, Frank Cooper, who gave up a post in the glove-manufacturing industry at Yeovil to joint the expedition as gold diviner, was able to locate at Trinidad a number of sunken Spanish galleons, which were scuttled in 1797 to avoid capture by the British Fleet, according to Jolly's story.

Finding the galleons, he said, was as easy as could be for Cooper, who used for the purpose only a gramophone spring. "That Cooper's work was successful we know," said Mr. Jolly, "because we took soundings and were able to trace the actual shape of the sunken ships. They are down in only seven fathoms of water —a depth easy for divers to work in —and, above all, they are in a very sheltered part."

Wanted To Look Around

Prince George Climbed 180-Foot Scaffolding Beside "Big Ben"

Prince George demonstrated remarkable nerve before a small crowd of people when he climbed up the web-like scaffolding surrounding Big Ben's tower at the House of Commons. No one looking on knew who the "human fly" was. To them it was simply a young man in a gray suit.

The prince had expressed a desire to climb up the ladders from platform to platform until he reached Big Ben, and then have "a good look round." Accompanied by two of the men engaged on the scaffolding work, he reached the highest point. After a few minutes he climbed over a parapet leading to the gallery where the bells that chime the quarters are installed. The prince ascended by means of a long spiral staircase inside the tower.

"Climbing the ladders to such a height is not an easy job for one not accustomed to the work," an official told a reporter. "But the prince got up very quickly, and showed fine nerve. He told us that he thoroughly enjoyed the experience." During the 190 feet ascent the prince had to climb up steep ladders from which, when glancing down, he could see nothing between himself and the ground. In many places the scaffolding upon which he had to walk consisted only of a couple of planks.

Russia's New Fast Train

With a new idea for locomotives, S. S. Valdner, an official scientist of the Russian transport commissariat, has invented an exceedingly fast railway engine which is called an "aero-train." The prefix "aero" is a trifle misleading, because the locomotive does not fly, but the term is intended to describe the engine as of the aeroplane type, with propellers. It is stated that the train is stable at a speed of more than 150 miles an hour.

Ceylon's First Woman Lawyer

Nineteen Year Old Girl Was Brilliant Scholar In London

Among those to pass the examination for call to the English Bar is Miss Avardia Mehta, of Colombo, Ceylon.

Miss Mehta is only 19 years old, a slim Parsee girl from Ceylon, whose appearance would give the impression that her school days were hardly over yet. She was a brilliant scholar at the Maria Grey Training College, London, England, and after she matriculated she read for the Bar in Lincoln's Inn.

I saw her at her home in Hampstead, where she is living with her mother—writes an Evening News representative. She was wearing a native dress of blue and gold.

"I shall be the first woman barrister in Ceylon," she said. "There are, of course, a number of women lawyers in India, but up to now there have been none in my own country."

"I am eager to begin work at the Bar in Ceylon, but I have to wait some time yet before I can do that. I cannot be called until I am 21, and I have to eat my dinner for three more terms. I may go to India first and practice there for a time before going to Colombo."

Miss Mehta said there was no branch of the law in which she took especial interest and her practice would be a general one. Her father is a marine superintendent at Colombo, and one of the few Parsees in Ceylon. "There are only 200 there," she said, "but there are 100,000 in India."

Matter Being Considered

Train Ferry May Be Inaugurated Between England and Sweden

A train ferry between Sweden and Britain may be inaugurated, if present plans materialize. A minimum capital of one-half million kronor already has been subscribed, due to the confidence with which the project is regarded in Britain.

Drawings for the ferry have been made and the boat is estimated to cost 3,500,000 kronor and have room for 54 refrigerator cars, 10 freight cars and 430 first-class passengers. The Swedish terminal will be Varberg.

It has been suggested that during the summer months the ferry make an intermediate stop at Copenhagen.

Hardly Necessary

With the nations feeling the way they do about each other, what need is there for trains that go 110 miles an hour and airplanes that go 250 miles an hour? It must be that we are perfecting communications in order to get away from each other as fast as we can.

The production of potatoes in Canada in 1932 amounted to 39,416,000 cwt., the smallest yield recorded since 1916.

Curtailing Wheat Production

Busheiage Rather Than Acreage Basis Gives Best Hope Of Success

"The three Western Wheat Pools are unanimous in their opinion that, so long as world markets for wheat are disorganized by abormally large world carryover, steps should be taken to secure an international agreement which would provide for the allocation of quotas to be delivered by the principal wheat exporting countries on the basis of world requirements. The method to be adopted by each of these exporting countries in controlling deliveries to the world's markets should be a domestic matter to be settled by each of these countries."

This statement was made in a recent address by George W. Robertson, secretary of the Saskatchewan Wheat Pool.

Briefly, the plan seeks to lift the unmarketable wheat surplus out of the "visible supply" altogether, and it would remain out of the "visible supply" so long as the international agreement was in force. The individual grower would be under no restrictions whatever as to acreage and production, but the maximum amount of wheat which he could market from any given crop would be fixed as a result of the quota agreement. How he treated the balance would be entirely in his own hands.

It would mean that reserves could be held on the farms themselves instead of being stored in elevators as a constant threat to price levels.

Acreage reduction by law is not favored. "The Wheat Pool organization," Mr. Robertson stated, "is of the opinion that legislation enacted in this country for straight acreage reduction would be exceedingly difficult, if not impossible, to enforce, and that the net result would be unsatisfactory to the producer.

"It would appear that a busheiage rather than an acreage basis gives the best hope of success in bringing about a better relationship between wheat production and consumption."

Natives Take To Exploring

University Graduates Of India Start Expedition On Foot

Their imagination fired and their spirit of adventure aroused by the success of the Houston Mount Everest Expedition, native Indians are going in for mountain climbing and exploration. At Ahmedabad an Indian gymkana proposes to fly over the Himalayas, and an expedition on foot is now on its way to conquer the Pindari Glacier, in the United Provinces, near Nanga Devi, a 22,000-foot peak of one of the central off-shoots of the Himalayas. Nearly all the members of this expedition are university graduates. They will collect flora and fauna and take a film of their journey.

Bank Of England

To Be the Strongest Fortress In the British Isles

London's newest fortress is the Bank of England.

When the building is completed, bombs will be unable to harm it and high explosive shells will be useless against its walls.

Work on the "fortification" of the bank has been in progress since 1925 and it will be another three years before it is completed. Originally it was calculated to take about twelve years to make it the strongest fortress in the British Isles at a cost of about $25,000,000.

Idea Not Very Good

Tokio Man Has Novel Proposal To Restore Prosperity

A novel proposal to bring back prosperity by increasing the public's purchasing power has been thought out by Mr. Momosuke Fukunawa, of Tokio. He suggests that each of Japan's 80,000,000 inhabitants should be given a $50 note—good for a limited period. Everyone would have to spend his or her note before the "time limit" expired—otherwise it would be useless. The bankers, however, are rather skeptical.

Low Price Indeed

"Can you imagine!" cried Estelle, the waitress. "That fellow I waited on just now said hogs were five dollars now. Did that mean five dollars each?"

"No," replied Tillie, the cashier, "that's five dollars a hundred, of course."

"Him-m! No wonder farmers are kicking," sighed Estelle. "Imagine, only a nickel apiece for pigs!"

English Postage Stamps

Some Slight Changes In Color and Design Are Contemplated

The drab English postage stamp, showing only a picture of the ruling sovereign, is to be altered but only slightly.

Sir Kingsley Wood, Postmaster-General, announced this while addressing a banquet of the philatelic congress in London. He said:

"Great Britain, early next year, will have an issue of new stamps as the present expires at the end of the year. I hope to take the opportunity of making some changes in design and possibly color.

"It is not proposed to alter the size or the general character of the stamps which will of course bear the head of the king.

"Criticism is sometimes made that our stamps remain unaltered. It is the valued tradition of Great Britain that our stamps should bear the effigy of the ruling sovereign. They are distinguished also by the fact that it is unnecessary for them to bear the name of the country of issue.

"Any variation of size would mean the complete alteration of stamp machines, of which there are 9,000 in London alone."

Feed Shortage

Farmers In Drought Areas Advised To Conserve Old Straw Piles

Fearing a shortage of feed and fodder in drought affected areas of Saskatchewan, government officials are urging councils in adjoining municipalities to conserve all old straw piles.

Hon. Howard McConnell, Minister of Municipal Affairs, attended a meeting of representatives of 11 municipalities, at Davidson, where the matter was placed before the meeting by municipal delegates. They were alarmed at the possibility of a serious fodder shortage.

Mr. McConnell said that every indication was that a measure of direct relief would have to be provided for these municipalities, but that he had taken the stand that the government could not supply feed and fodder for feeder cattle, but that in so far as work horses and milch cows for production for home consumption that the attitude in this regard would be different.

Porcupines Of the Sea

Globe-Fishes Can Make Themselves Immune From Attack

Various sea-creatures, like the moon, wax and wane in size. Some have the power of growing larger than normal as a temporary expedient, then reducing themselves. Others regularly grow smaller, and then start life afresh. The fishes called globe-fishers or puffers, and their relatives, the porcupine-fishes can by swallowing water or air, make their bodies swell up like balloons. They are too roundish in shape to be fast swimmers, but they wear an armor of spines which appear as a truly terrible palisade when they puff themselves up and float. No predatory fish dare attack these porcupines of the sea. When they deflate themselves, by expelling the air, a loud hissing sound is produced.

Accident Was Lucky

Currency Smuggler On Jugo-Slavian Frontier Almost Got By

Completely dumb in appearance and behaviour, a woman tried to cross the Jugo-Slavian frontier into Italy, at Sushak. She was searched as a smuggler of foreign currency, but none was found on her. A chimney official straightening up suddenly, however, knocked her on the chin with his head. The woman ejected lowed by a volley of choice oaths. The lowed by a volley of choice oats. The packet was found to contain nearly $500 in notes of large denomination tightly rolled and wrapped in waterproof paper. The money was confiscated and the woman imprisoned.

Was Shipping Magnate

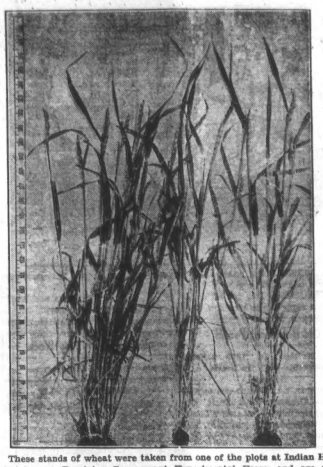

Sir John Ellerman, Richest Man In England, Is Dead

Sir John Ellerman, shipping magnate and reputedly the richest man in England, died recently at Dieppe, France. He was 71 years old.

Sir John, created a baronet in 1905 was controlling owner of the Ellerman, City, Hall and Bucknall lines, and other steamship companies. Formerly he was principal owner of the Leyland line.

Sir John was believed to be worth more than £30,000,000. The shipping magnate's income was estimated at £1,000,000 yearly, yet he lived in one house in Mayfair and sold his Scottish castle three years ago.

IS THIS A RECORD FOR GERMINATION?

These stands of wheat were taken from one of the plots at Indian Head, Saskatchewan, Dominion Government Experimental Farm, and are from seeds taken from one of the 10,000 samples taken from 2,700 entries received from over 20 different countries in the competitive classes at the World's Grain Exhibition and Conference. The seeds were placed in the ground on May 1st and plucked on June 22 in full ear with all shoots strong, clean and healthy.

Light According To Job

Whitehall Officials Grade Candle Power Of Electric Lamps

The high officials of Whitehall have decided that the power of the electric lamp that lights a man's desk must be in strict ratio to what he earns.

When the electric light was first installed in Whitehall a great social error was committed.

Every one from the highest official to the most junior clerk was given a lamp of the same candle power.

That system, which continued in force for years, is now being rightened.

All electric lamp bulbs are being removed and new bulbs substituted under the following order:

Junior clerks—30 candle-power.

Higher clerks—50 candle-power.

Quite important clerks—100 candle-power.

Permanent under-secretary for state—200 candle-power.

A high treasury official has written a poem of praise:

"The minister rich just presses it switch
And a floodlight illumines his pages.
The poor junior clerk has to work in the dark—
As his chief has been doing for ages."

The new system is now in working order.

World's Highest Postal Lane

The men intrusted with carrying the mails from Tachienlu, China, to Litang and Batang never drop below an altitude of 9,000 feet, rise occasionally to 15,500 feet, and never sight a beacon light or a landing field. The world's highest postal lane is traveled not by airplanes but by Chinese mail carriers making the entire trip afoot.

New Diphtheria Serum

Will Immunize Six Months Old Baby For Life

The Alabama Health Department has developed a new diphtheria serum which it says will immunize a six-months-old baby for life by a single injection.

Dr. J. N. Baker, state health officer, said the serum had the approval of the national institute of health at Washington, and the Alabama committee of public health, and was the result of exhaustive research by the late Dr. Leon C. Havens, for 12 years director of the state laboratories here.

The health officer said the new precipitate toxoid was from 20 to 50 times as active as the crude toxoid.

Using Compressed Air

Spanish Engineer Has Invented New Type Of 'Plane

Compressed air is used as motive power in a new type of flying machine invented at Madrid by a Spanish engineer, Don Fernando Garrido. He hopes to achieve virtually vertical flying in this machine, and also to reach the stratosphere in it. Don Fernando is well known in Spain as the author of the scheme for boring a tunnel under the Straits of Gibraltar.

A Race Of Builders

Three hundred years ago apple trees were imported from Normandy into Acadia to lay the foundation of the now famous apple ochards of the Annapolis Valley. One hundred and fifty years later the United Empire Loyalists came to New Brunswick, Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island. Today the three Maritime provinces have a population of more than a million people and with developed and undeveloped natural resources capable of supporting many times that number.—Financial Post.

"No nation can now stand alone."—Mr. Ramsay MacDonald.

"Oh, can't it!"—Mr. Panama.

London's Famous Squares

Stately Houses Being Crowded Out By Business Premises

London's famous squares are changing rapidly. Under the westward sweep of trade the stately old houses are being crowded out by business premises and flats, writes James A. Kilpatrick in the Oovrseas Daily Mail. Grosvenor Square is the last stronghold of Mayfair to be invaded; Lowndes Square is to follow; and work has just begun on a lofty blockof offices in St. James's Square.

Soon the only record left of these charming bits of London will be a few old prints and pictures. Several painters give us fragments of this vanishing beauty at the Royal Academy, and architects show us what is going to happen when they have had their will with them. It is the way of progress.

There are 140 squares in London, ranging in size from Gough Square, that precious little relic of Dr. Johnson's day hidden away in the labyrinth of alleys behind Fleet Street, to the spacious acres of Trafalgar Square. Most of them are changing, and hardly any in the West End have escaped.

Popular Idioms Approved

"It Is Me" and Many Others Considered Good English

Mothers who have labored for years to remove from their youngsters' conversation such phrases as "It is me" and "Who are you looking for?" may leave off their praiseworthy, but vain, endeavors.

The National Council of Teachers of English recently voted to approve the following idioms as well established in good colloquial usage:

"It is me."
"Who are you looking for?"
"Invite whoever you wish."
"None are expected."
"Everyone was here but they all went home early."
"Healthy climate."
"Pretty good."
"Awfully cold."
"I felt badly about it."
"Walk or drive or go slow."
"Move quick."
"Try and get well."
"Had rather."

Customs Subject To Change

People Find It Easy To Form New Habits If Necessary

The handshake is now frowned upon in Italy. When friends meet they are expected to exchange the Fascist salute—"handshaking." It is stated "is unhygienic." Well, perhaps the "no handshaking" order will produce the desired effect. Habits can be altered. The Chinese, accustomed in his own country to shake hands with himself when he meets a friend, soon falls into the Western custom when he comes to Europe. And discipline counts for a lot in modern Italy. Already kissing has been virtually abolished in the land of Mussolini—at least, in public. Censors cut out all the kisses from the films, and cinema-goers who supply their own find themselves arrested by the militia. Even holding hands in public is an offence punishable with a fine.

No Evidence Of Ability

Good Handwriting False Standard For Judging Says Headmaster

Good handwriting is no guide to ability, according to Dr. Terry Thomas, headmaster of Leeds Grammar School, speaking at a conference held by the Incorporated Association of Headmasters' Council in London. Many people, he declared, were prone to judge a boy's ability by his handwriting and his capacity for arithmetic. These were false standards, for most able people wrote a bad hand, and pure arithmetic denoted nothing but mechanical skill developed by practice.

Spends Pension On Air Trips

Englishman Regrets Weekly Income Limits Flights To Two

George E. Smith, aged 83, of Kingston Road, Merton, Surrey, England, is so fond of flying that he spends his old-age pension on aerial trips.

His one regret is that the weekly 10 shillings limits his flights to two.

"I cannot understand young people being afraid of flying," says Mr. Smith. "It is the most exhilarating experience in the world, and each flight makes me feel 10 years younger.

"I would rather go without my tobacco than miss a flight."

"Everything that's bought goes to the buyer, doesn't it?"

"No. Some things such as coal, go to the cellar."

Beyond The Pale

Kidnappers Continue Their Frightful Trade In U.S. Cities

Eight American states impose or at any rate provide in their laws, the death penalty for kidnapping with extortion as the motive. In thirteen the penalty is imprisonment for life. In all the others it is a long jail term. After the abduction and murder of young Charles Lindbergh last year, Congress in a mood of indignation made "inter-state kidnapping" a federal offence punishable by twenty years in prison.

Yet the kidnappers continue their frightful trade in American cities. The severity of the laws against them seems to be no deterrent. The kidnapings of a recent week have been in Illinois where a kidnapper may be hanged, and in New York where he may be locked up 50 years. It is trite but true to say that the most appalling of rackets still flourishes because of the uncertainty of punishment. The failure of the hunt for the kndnappers of the Lindbergh child shocked and alarmed the decent citizens. It encouraged those who were meditating like crimes, especially since an immense sum was paid in ransom and not recovered.

Among criminals the kidnapper seems somehow further beyond the pale than any other. Even a murderer sometimes shows great enough provocation to get sympathy from humane and gentle people. But one can never imagine an extenuating circumstance for the kidnapper. He is in league with fear, the worst enemy of the race. Every man's hand is against him. When he strikes, his fellow citizens are moved not only by wrath but by shame and dismay. That is how Americans feel about the kidnappers who terrorize their towns, but how to get rid of the blight seems to be, at the moment, beyond the wit of their police forces.—Winnipeg Free Press.

Green Foods For Poultry

Dried Plant Leaves Contain More Minerals and Vitamins

Without doubt one of the most important considerations in choosing green foods for poultry is the form in which they should be given. Owing to the relatively small capacity of poultry, it is necessary to give them a very concentrated ration in order that they can consume sufficient food to produce the enormous amount of food products per unit of body weight of which they are capable. Green food is available in two forms, namely, as dried leaves of plants and fresh cut green. Since, as far as is known at the present time, drying under proper conditions, removes only water from the plant, dry leaves of plants contain proportionately more of minerals and vitamins than the fresh plant. This point is readily established by various tables of vitamins and nutrient contents of feeds in the new pamphlet on poultry feeds and feeding issued by the Dominion Department of Agriculture.

Cheapest Monarchy In World

Financial Relations Between King George and Taxpayers Profitable

The crown of Britain is the cheapest monarchy in the world. The taxpayers actually make a profit of £740,000 (about $2,960,000) out of the financial relations between the King and the state, for, though the King draws a nominal salary of £470,000 ($1,880,000) he voluntarily relinquishes every year £1,210,000 ($4,840,000) in revenues from the crown lands. The King's real salary is £110,000 ($440,000) a year. The rest of the civil list total is earmarked for salaries, expenses, and upkeep of the royal households and palaces. The sum of £13,200 ($52,800) is spent every year on royal bounty and alms, apart from personal donations of the King and Queen. Only two of the royal residences, Sandringham and Balmoral, are the King's private property. They were bequeathed to him by King Edward.

Undoing Good Work

If Inefficient Teachers Are Hired As Matter Of Economy

It takes a bit of wisdom to economize wisely. The action of some school boards throughout the country recalls the old adage, "Penny wise, pound foolish." There is a tendency to overlook the good work that has been done by faithful and highly efficient teachers and for the sake of saving a little salary to engage young and untried teachers, to fill exacting positions. In this way the work of building up a school over a period of years is practically undone overnight.

WORLD HAPPENINGS BRIEFLY TOLD

The four-power European peace pact has been signed here by Premier Mussolini, and representatives of France, Germany and Great Britain.

Sixty Jersey cattle, including three bulls, valued at more than £40,900, left Jersey on their way to their new owners in Canada and the United States.

Drought in parts of Southwestern Africa is now in its eighth year, and many farmers have been ruined while others are treking over the countrry with their cattle in search of grass.

During the four weeks ended June 20, Canadian grain exports through New York totalled 2,425,000 bushels, a decline of 2,027,900 bushels from a year ago.

With several thousand men on the waiting list desirous of entering the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, the list has been practically closed for the time being.

Edmonton ins the most air-minded city in Canada, according to Col. George A .Drew, of Toronto. Addressing the Empire Club at Winnipeg, Col. Drew said Fort McMurray, north of Edmonton, was the greatest aviation centre in Canada.

There was a very definite pick-up in the exports of Canadian agricultural products to the United States in June, the value of the total being $546,000 compared with $217,000 in June, 1932, a report of the Dominion Bureau of Statistics said.

The "Royal Scot," crack British railway train now on show at the Chicago Exhibition, will likely visit Winnipeg this fall after the close of the Chicago Fair, according to a letter received by Mayor Ralph Webb from the Montreal representatives of the London, Midland and Scottish Co.

With an Anglo-Russian economic warfare ended as a result of negotiations between Maxim Litvinoff, Soviet Foreign Commissar, and Sir John Simon, Secretary for Foreign Affairs, Great Britain is looking forward to a greatly increased export trade with the Soviet Union, officials said.

Parasitological Research

McGill University To Investigate Parasitic Diseases Of Domestic Animals

Last year's report of the Empire Marketing Board referred to a decision of the boad to share with the National Research Council of Canada the cost of maintaining an Institute of Helminthology (study of maw and intestinal worms) at Macdonald College, McGill University, Montreal, for the investigation of parasitic diseases of domestic animals.

The laboratory buildings have been completed and equipped during the year with funds provided by the Quebec Government. Dr. T .W. M. Cameron, formerly of Edinburgh University, has been appointed director of the institute and work started on April 1, 1932. The establishment of the institute has been welcomed by agricultural and lay opinion in Canada. The administration of the work is under the control of a specially appointed associate committee on Parasitology of the National Research Council, of which Dr. H. M. Tory president of the council, is chairman.

Prince Buys Sixth 'Plane

Newest Machine Has Armchair Seats For Passengers

The Prince of Wales has purchased another aeroplane—his sixth. The new machine is a De Havilland Dragon Moth, with a maximum speed of about 130 m.p.h.

It is a biplane with six arm-chair seats for passengers in the cabin, and separate accommodation for the pilot in the cockpit. The arm chairs are upholstered in scarlet leather and the cabin is decorated in fawn and red. The 'plane is two-engined with 260 h.p. It is finished, like all the prince's 'planes, in the red and blue of the House Brigade Flying Club.

Flight-lieutenant F. H. Fielden, the prince's personal pilot, took the machine across the channel on a test flight. The prince intends using it himself.

Egypt Building Big Dam

The British firm of Messrs. J. W. Gibson, has been awarded by the Egyptian Government the big contract of building the Gebel Awlia dam, a few miles south of Khartoum. Their tender was for £10,390,420. Four firms, all British, tendered for the contract. It is estimated that the building of this dam will increase Egypt's cultivable land by 300,000 acres, and will take four years.

Shined Thousands Of Shoes

Colored Man Has Been Railway Porter Forty-Six Years

In forty-six years of service as a porter at the union station of the Maine Central and the Boston and Maine railroads, in Portland, Moses Green, colored, figures he has put a bright gloss on approximately 671,000 shoes, and grinned for 335,000 customers.

What's more, he figures that about $1,569,500 worth of shoe leather has gone under his polishing cloth. He is known to travellers from all over the world who come to Maine for their vacations.

Bad Times Man-Made

Dr. Beaumont, English poet, wrote in the seventeenth century "If we would rightly scan, it's not the times are bad, but man." The comment is still correct. Messes are mostly man-made. There is an occasional catastrophe brought by the forces of nature. But natural disasters do not measure in effect with man's economic social, political blunders. We are tripped by our own stupidity.—Brandon Sun.

Famous Liner Scrapped

After considerable delay the liner "Baltic," once a renowned floating palace of the Atlantic service, is being scrapped in the shipbreaking yards at Osaka, Japan. The ship, which had been purchased at junk price, arrived there last March, but before it could be towed into the harbor the shallow river bed had to be dredged to a depth of more than 19 feet.

Letter Written In 1876 Offered Judgeship To Nova Scotia Senator

A letter in which Canada's second premier, Alexander Mackenzie, offered a judgeship to Senator William Miller of Arichat, N.S., in 1876, has been found and presented to the provincial archives.

Written in the premier's hand-writing, the letter reads:

"My Dear Sir: We expect within a few days to make the several appointments to the county court in Nova Scotia as the local government desires to issue the proclamation provided for by the statute.

"I write to request you to allow me to submit your name to his excellency for the Cape Breton district.

"Mr. Blake left for England three weeks ago, or he would have communicated with you on the subject. I know, however, that your nomination will be entirely satisfactory to him, and I have every reason to believe that it will give general satisfaction in the district and in the province.

"I will feel greatly obliged by receiving your early answer, and remain, My Dear Sir, Yours Faithfully, A. Mackenzie."

Heavy Tourist Travel

Indications That Visitors To National Park Will Equal Peak Year Of 1929

Tourist travel in Canada's national parks this season has given indications of equalling in volume the peak year of 1929, according to information reaching Hon. T. G .Murphy, Minister of the Interior. The first day of July marked the opening of the season in most national parks, particularly in the Rocky Mountain region, and the number of visitors over the Domilon Day holiday is usually taken as an indication of what the season will produce.

At Banff national park in Alberta, all available accommodations were occupied on Dominion Day and many tourists slept in their cars it was reported.

These have been wonderful years for the type of young married people who are drawn closer by early struggle.

It's as simple as this. The nations must come to peace or go to pieces.

Recipes For This Week

(By Betty Barclay)

CHEESE SOUFFLE

3 tablespoons quick-cooking tapioca.
1 cup milk, scalded.
1 cup grated cheese.
3 egg yolks, beaten until thick and lemon-colored.
3 egg whites, stiffly beaten with 1 teaspoon salt.

Add tapioca to milk, and cook in double boiler 15 minutes, or until tapioca is clear, stirring frequently. Add cheese and stir until melted. Cool. Add egg yolks and mix well. Fold in egg whites. Bake in greased baking dish, placed in pan of hot water, in moderate oven (350 degrees Fahrenheit). Souffle is done when it shrinks a trifle and is brown. Serves 4.

When made with quick-cooking tapioca and properly baked, souffles do not fall, but stay tender, moist, and light while being served.

RASPBERRY ICEBOX PIE

1 cup small vanilla wafers, rolled fine.
1 package raspberry gelatine dessert.
1 pint raspberries.
½ cup cream, whipped, sweetened and flavored.

Roll wafers fine and line buttered pie plate with the crumbs. Prepare gelatine according to directions on package. Chill and when beginning to set, pour into crumb lined plate and chill. When set add a layer of fresh raspberries and cover with whipped creaf. 6 portions.

Not Human Nature

The shop assistant wrapped up the customer's parcel and deftly handed it to him.

"There you are, sir," he said, "and if the goods are not just to your liking we will cheerfully refund the cash."

Farmer Giles sniffed.

"Don't ye tell me sech a yarn, young man," he replied.

"Eh? What?" exclaimed the assistant, momentarily taken off his guard.

"Ye might gi'e me my money back," said the farmer, "but 'tain't human nature to be cheerful about it.

Never Fully Explained

Learned Men Do Not Know How Memory Functions

Memory is both a physiological and and a psychological process, and has never been fully explained. It is all very well for learned men to tell us that impressions are made upon certain nerve-cells in the sensorium, and that these nerve cells have both sensibility and retentive power, and are capable of prolonging the vibratory excitations which first set them in motion. The sensorium, by the by, is that common reservoir into which all the impressions that have thrown the nerve fibres into agitation flow and subside. This has not solved the problem of why we remember some things and forget others, or why some men have memories called "good" and certain other men have memories called "bad."

If it were not for memory we should wake up every morning as helpless as a new-born infant. It is memory that teaches us to look at the clock by the bedside to see what time it is; memory teaches us how to put our clothes on; and instructs us that bacon and eggs are good to eat and that the knife and fork by the side of the plate are the implements for dealing with our food. Our speech and every trivial action of our lives depend entirely upon our memories.

Which reminds us that it is possible to forget the name of a thing, but not its use. A patient suffering from a disorder of the brain could not remember what a spoon was called, but knew quite well that it could be used to eat soup with.

Other sufferers from this complaint call things by wrong and most inappropriate names, while others can describe an object without being able to recall its name. Thus, a pen would be indicated as "the thing you use for writing." This particular defect of memory is called amnesia.

Russia Spoiled Plans Of Finnish Aviator

Flier Was Not Allowed To Go Up East Coast

Bronzed by sun and wind after 16,000 miles of flying which would have taken him more than half way around the world if it had not been for international complications, Captain Waino Bremer, young Finnish aviator, brought his monoplane to rest at the Ottawa air station. His Atlantic flight was cancelled.

Captain Bremer left Finland on May 1, intending to fly his small all-metal 'plane, which took him to Cape Town and back last year, around the world. After successfully navigating the route over Germany, Arabia, Persia, India and China, he finally arrived at Yokohama. From there he intended to fly to Vladivostock, in Siberia, and so on to Nome, Alaska. However, Russian officials refused to allow him to fly up the east coast so he was forced to ship his 'plane to San Francisco from whence he flew to Ottawa.

Chinese Buying 'Planes

Three thousand fighting aeroplanes will be placed in service in the next three years by the Chinese Nanking Government, General Chih Jon Chow, young commander-in-chief of aeronautics, announces. General Chih said he was examining various types of 'planes in the United States.

If you print any more jokes against Scotsman I shall cease borrowing your paper," writes a man from Aberdeen.

Fine Piece Of Legislation

Special Permission Required To Carry Firearms In Canada

One of the finest pieces of legislation that have been passed in many years is now in force, and hereafter no one in Canada is permitted to carry firearms without special permission. We are fairly clear of the Southern European habit of carrying knives, but the very bad habit of carrying guns, revolvers and other forms of pistols, automatics, etc., has crept over from the United States and leads often to fatal results in quarrels which, were they properly confined to the good old British weapons of the fists, would be comparatively harmless.

Foreigners from the less civilized parts of the world, seem to think that guns are necessary in Canada, but such is not the case, and most of us can go through life without ever seeing one of these weapons, and certainly without having to use one. When it is widely known that guns are no longer lawful, and those who carry guns become objects of suspicion, it will be better for all concerned. Even thieves and burglars do not need guns. They are not used in Britain except by imported American criminals, and the police do not need therefore to use them either.—Hamilton Herald.

Canadian Landscapes

Exhibition Of Water Colors Shown In England

London's gallery-goers are showing keen interest in an exhibition of water colors, many of Canadian scenes, being shown at the Grabam Gallery in new Bond Street by Miss Elizabeth Harper, of the Overseas league. Queen Mary is among those who have attended the show.

Miss Harper, a great admirer of Canadian landscape, has painted scenes as far north as Hudson Bay and includes in the present exhibition pictures done at Windsor, N.S., Ottawa, the Rockies and as far west as Vancouver. Among her subjects are: "Mount Edith Cavell," "Mount Robson," "Great Trees, Stanley Park," "A Sunrise on Hudson Bay," "Moose Factory," and "Scenes on the Moose River in Northern Ontario," "The Lions, Vancouver," "Grouse Mountain," "Lake Louise and Emerald Lake."

Capture in her strong water colors of Canada's brilliant atmosphere as well as the country's more sober moods occasioned much favorable comment. Her show contains also pictures painted in New York and in the West Indies.

An African Superstition

Natives Believe Babies Should Be Smoked Over Fire

One of the most peculiar tribal customs among natives of darkest Africa, is the superstition that a baby must be held over the smoke of a camp fire in order to make it "pure" and such a baby must not associate with one which was not "smoked" as an infant.

Such was the report of Miss Ruth C. Cowles, R.N., at Johannesburg, South Africa, a nurse of the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions. She is a native of New Britain, Conn., and her parents live in Alhambra, California.

"But we are gradually proving," Miss Cowles wrote, "that such superstitions are groundless, and that tots, smoked or unsmoked, are safe in the hands of our native Christian nurses."

A Mystery

Safe Stolen Two Years Ago Is Found On Prairie

Believed to be the same safe stolen from Harmsworth, Sask., two years ago, a safe was "blown" on prairie land, near the Black Hawk mine at Bienfait, over the week-end, according to word reaching R.C.M.P. headquarters at Regina. There was nothing in the safe but papers.

During the two years elapsing since the Harmsworth safe was stolen, no trace of it was found. Mounted police are working on the theory that those responsible for the theft secreted the safe on the prairie near the Bienfait mine where it was found and "blown" by a second gang over the week-end.

Exhibit Draws Crowds

Canada's exhibit at the Century of Progress Exposition, Chicago, is drawing a daily attendance of approximately 15,000 persons, according to information reaching the Department of Trade and Commerce. This number represents about 15 per cent. of the total daily attendance at the exposition.

IRISH DELEGATE REPROVED BY CONFERENCE CHAIRMAN

A sensation was caused in the economic commission of the World Economic Conference when Hendryk Colijn, Dutch Prime Minister, as chairman of the commission stopped Joseph Connolly, Irish Delegate, from speaking. Mr. Connolly (above inset) was supporting the Soviet proposal for an economic truce and began an attack on Great Britain's economic actions against the Irish Free State. Premier Colijn interrupted to advise Mr. Connolly not to stray from the subject under discussion and the Irish delegate sat down. Our main picture shows Premier Colijn indicated by arrow.

Occasional Wife

Author of "JORETTE," "LIPSTICK GIRL," ETC.

CHAPTER I.

Camilla gave her smocked shoulders a little shake of determination and hunched them over her sketch pad, focusing her eyes intently upon the still-life model which the art instructor had selected for the next progressive step of his class toward artistic appreciation and creative expression. With detailed precision, he had called their attention to the perspectives, receding contours, highlights and symmetry of the Grecian art. A still-life study, he had called it.

To Camilla, the word had implied vaguely some horrible tragedy. At any rate, no two such antithetic words had any right to be hyphenated she thought. She preferred studies in active life, anyway. Virile, robust, glowingly alive, like—well, like the study of real life which interfered too much with her line of vision toward the still-life study object that she was sketching with impatient difficulty.

It was much more of a temptation to sit idly and watch the back of a certain young man's head which jerked and dived intermittently with his contemplation of the lesson object, and the stalwart shoulders that moved rhythmically with the motion of his pencil on the pad. A handsome blonde head, it was, with hair that curled roguishly and set gracefully above the broad shoulders, with just a line of immaculate linen visible above the coat collar.

MINARD'S "KING OF PAIN" LINIMENT

Camilla was glad that their respective positions made it possible for her to watch him without his seeing her or being conscious of her, even. True, he had looked at her several times directly, which had caused her heart to flutter up into her throat so that she became confused and breathless. But those glances had meant nothing to him, because his interest had seemed to stop right there. She was just an unusually pretty girl who attracted men's glances easily. There was nothing new to Camilla about that. Ever since she had entered formal society three years ago, she had been a cynosure for all masculine eyes, old and young; but their glances had not interested her in the least.

Camilla was a product of one of the queerest quirks of fate that life could wish upon anyone. She herself never knew whether to resent it or rejoice over it. The elements for either attitudes were there. Usually, she resented it, rarely, she rejoiced over it; and in occasional optimistic moods she decided that only her destiny could determine her final attitude. On this particular day, she was inclined to rejoice that any circumstances of fate had placed her in the same art class with the young Nordic giant whom Professor Drake addressed as Mr. Anson, and whom she ascertained by subtle questioning among the students, was named Peter. Simple, straightforward name —Peter Anson. It suited so admirably his splendid physique and his frank, amiable manner. Camilla sighed and dropped her charcoal pencil on the drawing board with a gesture of resignation. Her sketch already resembled a man's head more than a Grecian urn.

"Having difficulty, Miss Hoyt?" Professor Drake's booming voice recalled her to still-life consciousness and, what was worse, drew to her the attention of the whole class, including Peter Anson.

Camilla coloured painfully and confessed, "I—I don't know—just what is the trouble. My sketch isn't going very well."

"Ahem! I see no reason for that, Miss Hoyt. You have mastered far more difficult studies. This one is very simple—ah, here is a splendid piece of work," taking up Peter Anson's sketch as he passed on his way toward Camilla, and holding it up for the inspection of the class. "You see, the proportions are perfect—in fact, it is a replica of the original, Mr. Anson," he turned suddenly, "will you look at Miss Hoyt's sketch and see if you can find her trouble. You want experience as a critic, so tell us what should be done about it."

Peter and Camilla exchanged appealing glances that escaped the instructor's professionally keen eyes. Peter hesitated. "But I'd much rather not criticize the work of fellow students, sir—"

"And how," demanded Professor Drake, "do you expect to criticize the work of professionals if you do not begin on students? Perhaps," he suggested, "your criticisms would be of greater value to Miss Hoyt, even, than mine would be."

Peter smiled pleasantly and stepped back to Camilla's chair. "In that case," he said, "I'll be glad to offer suggestions," and his smile was transferred to Camilla as his blue eyes met her startled black ones. Like sunshine scintillating on blue ice, she thought, reaching her sketch pad toward him at arm's length before he had a chance to come closer.

She wanted to escape from the room, to hide her burning face; but her fascinated gaze was held by his face as he inspected her work. Camilla thought she detected an amused flicker at the corners of his mouth that leaped up and sparkled in his eyes, but his expression betrayed nothing to the waiting class.

Everyone recognized that Peter Anson was the outstanding genius of the National Art School and a favorite protege of Professor Drake. But no one resented Peter's superiority, because everyone liked Peter, whether they knew him well or not. He never was condescending or supercilious, rather the contrary; and out of class his scorned any claim of superiority. His shy reticence even added to his charming manner a certain diffidence that appealed to everyone.

After a moment's sober inspection of Camilla's sketch and several corroborative glances toward the still-life study, he remarked, "I think, Miss Hoyt that you were not seeing the study-object when you made this —there is so little resemblance, and yet it suggests something very —shall I say—real—more alive? If you will notice, the handles of the urn in your sketch look more like — ears, perhaps. You must have been sketching some other object from memory, unconsciously." He turned to Professor Drake. "Sorry, sir, but I don't think I can offer a fair criticism of this, under the circumstances."

"Very well, Mr. Anson. I would suggest, Miss Hoyt, that you follow the study object more closely, hereafter. When we have occasion to work from imagination you may do so."

"Yes, sir," agreed Camilla, collecting her materials and looking neither to the right nor left. Scorn for Professor Drake and Peter Anson burned and seethed within her breast. She felt like a troubled volcano ready to erupt with anger and humiliation that would manifest itself in scathing words and violent tears, if she did not escape soon from the room.

Which she did, the moment the class was dismissed, hurrying, almost running out of the building into the spring sunshine. The art school building boasted a classic setting along a magnificent parkway that followed on toward the art museum, a formal garden and a lagoon that mirrored walls of Georgian marble, splashing fountains and verdant foliage.

The park benches already had been put out by the custodian, testifying to the season with their new green paint. Camilla slipped through the lilac hedge and sank down upon one of them with her head pillowed on her arm flung across the back of it. Silent, angry sobs shook her shoulders. Turbulent thoughts seethed in her mind. Life was a wretched thing. It pushed you into some queer circumstance, like a foaming whirlpool, and then challenged you to struggle out of it, jeering at you from the shore and pushing you back into the torrent again when you managed to gain a secure hold that promised safety and serenity.

Ever since she had discovered, three years ago, that life was a mad whirlpool, she had made a valiant effort to conquer it. And just when she grasped a rock of hope and was feeling its solid security, she had slipped back into the eddying chaos again. Meeting Peter Anson had done that to her. And today's experience was like a violent shove of a hand that pushed her below the surface and left her groping hopelessly.

A more prosaic person might scoff at Camilla's mental simile, and call it hyperbole and fantasy. But, of course, Camilla was not prosaic. Her aesthetic mind matched her astonishing beauty. She was dramatic and vivacious and imaginative, as she was lithe and colorful and radiant. Which describes Camilla in the abstract.

A Hand Touched Her Shoulder

As for visible features: the sparkling depths of her brown eyes first attracted you, then the childish curve of her red lips; her nose was an inconsequential thing that served to complete her facial requirements and her skin was like ivory satin that tempts the caress of your finger to see if it is soft as it looks. The picture was framed in a cloud of shining hair, black as ebony, and you could not soon forget the sweet, lingering way the black curls clung to the curve of her neck.

These are merely suggestions of the glowing beauty of Camilla. But the Greeks had a superstition that the gods were jealous of a man—or woman—who had too much good fortune, so they pulled him down. As Solon neatly put it to Croesus, "Count no man happy until he is dead, you never can tell what might happen to him."

So the gods had conspired to complicate affairs for Camilla, who was almost too beautiful in their covetous eyes. But Camilla was not weeping at the Acropolis in ancient Greece. She was crying on the art school campus in twentieth century America, and held no superstitious respect for Greek gods or any others—unless it was a fair-haired youth who might have personified a god in Norse myths, so much like a Thor or a Balder did he look. But she resolved now that even if she had the opportunity, she never would speak to him. He was as vain and conceited as he was handsome. So ran her distorted thoughts that were a mixture of resentment, humiliation, and love.

A hand touched her shoulder, lightly, then rested more heavily with gentle entreaty. Chills of panic quivered through Camilla's tense body.

Treasures Concealed In Highwayman's Coat

Money and Rings Belonging To Dick Turpin Just Found

Plum-colored coat which belonged to Dick Turpin, the notorious highwayman, contained money and jewellery which have just been discovered. The articles, six silver coins and two copper coins, minted between 1711 and 1732, a gold ring, two silver rings, and a pair of silver-gilt earrings, were found by Mr. E. Rutter, of Cambridge, who recently bought the coat, mask, pistols, and spurs, which Dick Turpin left at the Three Tuns Inn, Cambridge, on January 12, 1739, when he escaped from the Newgate runners. He was hanged before he could reclaim them. The treasures were revealed by a half-crown dropping from the lining.

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By Aline Michaelis

PEACE

No gift is lovelier than peace,
Which, after shout and clamor cease,
From all earth's tumult brings release!

He who has known youth's leaping fire,
That driving force of wild desires,
That strength which struggle never tires.

He who has climbed ambition's heights
Through cautious days and sleepless nights,
Urged on in search of fame's delights.

He knows, when all the quest is past,
The trials sore, the troubles vast.
His prize is barren gain, at last.

And so to peace in time he turns,
Its priceless worth one day he learns,
For peace his wearied spirit yearns.

No high-walled Troy, no golden fleece,
He learns, through wisdom's slow increase,
Could ever be more dear than peace!

Finds Canadians Friendly

Outstanding Characteristic Of People Opinion Of Lord Bessborough

More than two years' experience as Canada's Governor-General has convinced the Earl of Bessborough that the outstanding trait of Canadians as a people is friendliness.

Lord Bessborough stated this conviction before a meeting of the United Services Institute of Nova Scotia, gathered to welcome him as he and Lady Bessborough visited Halifax along the route of their Nova Scotia tour.

"If you should ask me after two and a quarter years as Governor-General of Canada, what is the outstanding characteristic of the Canadian, I should say friendliness. Whether it be the Prime Minister or some obscure individual—they all have the same friendliness."

The Way Of the Sea

John Masefield, the poet laureate, speaking at Rhodes House, Oxford, expressed his belief the life of the sea was one of the best schools for story writers. "It was my fortune to be bred to the sea as a boy, and the way of the sea is the way of narrative. The sailors among whom I passed my younger years were story tellers almost to a man." Mr. Masefield was told many stories of the sea when he joined a sailing ship at the age of 13.

A Democratic Queen

There is no more democratic sovereign than Wilhelmina, Queen of Holland. With her daughter, Princess Juliana, the last of the House of Orange, she may be seen cycling on an ordinary "push-bike" along the sands near The Hague, accompanied by royal attendants, all on bicycles, a rather long procession, with the queen at the head of the queue.

The fortune of the Maharajah of Jalpur, one of India's wealthiest men, has just been estimated at more than $500,000,000.

"These were the potters, and those that dwelt among plants and hedges: there thy dwelt with the king for his work."—1 Chronicles 5:23.

A lowlier task on them is laid,
With love to make the labor light;
And there their beauty they must shed
On quiet homes, and lost to sight.
Changed are their visions, high and fair,
Yet calm and still, they labor there.

Anywhere and everywhere we may dwell "with the King for His work." We may be in a very unlikely or unfavorable place for this, it may be a literal country life, with little enough to be seen of the goings of the King around us; it may be among hedges of all sorts, hindrances in all directions, it may be furthermore with our hands full of all manner of pottery for our daily task. No matter. The King who placed us there will come and dwell there with us, the hedges are all right or He would have done away with them, and it does not follow that what seems to hinder our way may not be for its very protection. As for the pottery, that is exactly what He has seen fit to put into our hands, and therefore it is for the present His work.—F. R. Havergal.

Peer's Conversion

Lord Melchett Returns To the Faith Of His Fathers

Lord Melchett, who was born a Jew and baptized a Christian, has returned to the faith of his fathers. The ceremony took place recently in private in a small Stamford Hill synagogue, Melchett afterwards joining in a Sabbath service.

Rev. Maurice Perlzweig, rabbi of the North London Liberal synagogue, who conducted the ceremony, is an old friend of Melchett. He said the peer's conversion was partly though not directly attributable to Nazi anti-Jewish activities and the outcome of deep study and deliberation.

Where Water Is Treasured

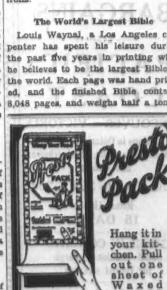

Miss Dorothy Buck, the novelist, who lives in Tunisia, has been telling, during her visit in Europe, about some of the quaint customs of her country. "The strangest dinner custom," she says, "is that if you are invited out you take your own pitcher of water. Wines are abundant, but the water is a most precious and treasured commodity."

Made Poor Choice

Garbade Meghrigial, a Syrian, found a dandy place to stow away on the "Ile de France" when she sailed from Havre. It was a ventilator. Three days at sea, however and Meghrigial discovered why it was called a ventilator. It ventilated. He caught cold, sneezed, and was thrown into irons.
